letter from publisher

Hello Friends,

Sharon

Happy Springtime!

I hope you are as excited about the new season as I am.

I shared with you previously what an amazing tool the Food Saver is. Cook up a variety of meals, make extra and save it for later – brilliant! A couple of lessons learned however. 1. If you are experimenting with recipes and you make something you didn't really like, don't food saver it. If you didn't like it the first time, chances are you are not going to enjoy it a second time. 2. Make sure to label everything. Because I didn't follow lesson number 1, and I failed to label a few meals, I was unpleasantly surprised when I had to eat them again.

If you are like me and you enjoy cooking, I encourage you to check out the variety of YouTube chefs. So many wonderful recipes and the step-by-step videos are like taking cooking classes. My eats have definitely been kicked up a notch since I found my favorite channels. One of those channels is Spain on a Fork. I love Spanish food and this channel has so many authentic recipes to try. With his permission, Chef Albert Bevia has allowed me to share this incredibly delicious and healthy recipe with all of you. Thank you Albert! I love your channel!

As always friends, we appreciate your continued support, and wish you a magical springtime! Warm wishes,

Sharon

Join our Detox Program!

The intensive group detox is designed to go upstream and straight to toxins, such as heavy metals and environment chemicals. These toxins get stored in some of the most critical areas of our body, such as our glands, organs, brain tissue, and cells.

When this happens, we experience a variety of symptoms like brain fog, weight gain, insomnia, fatigue, gut issues, inexplicable pain, etc. that can later lead to diseases like cancer, Alzheimers, diabetes, and obesity.

We take a 3-phase approach to detoxing that includes a Prep Phase where we support the body with vital nutrients to strengthen the detox organs, preparing them for the upcoming detox.

In Phase 2, aka the Body Phase, we take methylation to the next level, pushing toxins from the body and capturing the toxins so that they can be fully eliminated from the body.

In Phase 3, aka the Brain Phase, we focus on cleansing the brain at a cellular level, while nutritionally nourishing the brain's natural energy system.

Included in the Detox:

- Expert guidance and education
- Weekly Q&A Calls
- All supplements for the 3 phases of detoxification
- Comprehensive detox portal
- Additional resources to get the most out of your detox
- Small group setting
- Plus, how to detox your home and mindset too!

Gut Microbiome May Influence Obesity

Ssdecoret/Shutterstock.com

A new study may shed light on why some people gain more weight than others regardless of diet and activity levels. Led by researchers at the University of Copenhagen and published in the journal Microbiome, the study found that being overweight may also be related to the makeup of a person's gut microbiome. The researchers studied 85 overweight adults and found that 40 percent of the participants had more Bacteroides in their gut microbiome, which are more effective at extracting nutrients from food, possibly causing leftover food to be stored as fat. Before they began their study, the researchers had hypothesized that a long digestive travel time would allow people to extract more energy from their food, but they found instead that people with shorter digestive travel times were actually the ones that extracted the most nutrition. Those with Bacteroides had shorter intestinal transit times and higher body weight.

Human-Grade Dog Foods Lead to Less Poop

Although human-grade foods for pets are commercially available, little research has been done on their health impacts. A 2021 study published in the Journal of Animal Science compared the fecal output of 12 dogs that ate one of three types of dog food: fresh, human-grade or extruded (kibble). The researchers found that the dogs that were fed fresh and human-grade food excreted about half as much as those that were fed classic, processed dog food. The human-grade foods were also found to be extremely digestible, and the dogs that ate them had to eat less food to maintain the same weight. There were many differences in fecal microbiota among the three diets, and the scientists stated that this was likely because of differences in ingredient source, nutrient concentrations and processing methods.

Walnuts to Relieve Exam Stress

Stressed college students might benefit by adding walnuts to their diet before their next exam. A randomized clinical trial published in the journal Nutrients sought to investigate the effects of academic stress and daily walnut consumption on mental health, general well-being and gut microbiota in a group of 80 college students. Walnuts are full of nutrients that support brain and gut health, including omega-3 fatty acids, antioxidants, melatonin (sleep-inducing hormone), polyphenols, folate and vitamin E.

DionisiveraAdobeStock.com

The University of South Australia researchers concluded that daily consumption of one half cup of walnuts improved self-reported mood and mental health status, metabolic biomarkers and sleep quality. The data also suggested that walnuts might counteract the negative effects of academic stress on the gut microbiota in women. The scientists noted that more research was needed with respect to males, as far fewer men participated in this study. They also cautioned that the placebo effect could have influenced results, as this was not a blind study.

Supplements That Help the Heart

KucherAV/Shutterstock.com

A new study conducted by researchers at Brown University has identified certain supplements that may be beneficial for heart health. The meta-analysis published in the Journal of the American College of Cardiology reviewed more than 884 studies on 27 types of micronutrient supplements among 883,627 participants and found strong evidence that omega-3 fatty acid, folic acid and coenzyme Q10 (CoQ10) are micronutrients that reduce cardiovascular risk. Omega-3 fatty acid was found to decrease mortality from cardiovascular disease; folic acid lowered stroke risk; and CoQ10 decreased all-cause mortality. Omega-6 fatty acid, L-arginine, L-citrulline, melatonin, magnesium, vitamin D, zinc, alpha-lipoic acid, catechin, flavanol, curcumin, genistein and quercetin also showed evidence of reducing cardiovascular risk.

This Month's Monmouth County Co-op Corner

The radish ... such an acquired taste. You either love them or hate them. Certainly in a popularity contest with a potato, the tuber would win by a landslide! Here at Monmouth Organic Co-op we created our own little delicacy, the potadish! Here's a recipe to tantalize your taste buds:

POTADISH PATTIES

Ingredients:

- 3/4 cup grated radish
- 3/4 cup grated potato
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1/2 cup breadcrumbs
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- olive oil & 1/2 teaspoon hot sauce OR 1/4 teaspoon cayenne pepper
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
- 1/2 teaspoon paprika
- 1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
- 1/2 onion, chopped

Instructions:

- Combine graded radish & grated potato in mixing bowl, mix well
- Sprinkle with salt
- Refrigerate for 30 minutes
- Drain any moisture in bowl, dab with paper towel to dry
- Stir in garlic, onion, egg, bread crumbs, pepper, paprika, Italian seasoning and hot sauce/cayenne
- Mix well, form into 8 patties
- Your choice: Add olive oil to a large skillet and fry patties, 4-5 minutes on each side
- OR Add olive oil to a baking sheet and bake patties at 350 degrees for 20 minutes
- Drain on paper towels

Enjoy! Can be eaten plain or with sauce of your choice.

Spoiler alert - if you ROAST radishes they take on a bit of a potato feel and taste.

Crackdown on Musical Bows Made from Rare Wood

For centuries, brazilwood (Paubrasilia echinata) has been used to make the finest bows for classical stringed instruments due to its unmatched ability to project sound. The wood comes from Brazil's Atlantic Forest, one of the most threatened biomes in the world. This once abundant wood is now endangered, and its trade is regulated under the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES).

Since 2018, Brazilian authorities have been cracking down on brazilwood smuggling. They've confiscated almost 150,000 bows (and sticks) and last year raided 37 properties connected to their manufacture.

In November 2022, signatories to the CITES treaty voted to expand restrictions and require permits to export newly made brazilwood bows.

The classical music industry and several of its stars have voiced their opposition to such restrictions, but ecologists assert it is the only way to save the species.

Nations Agree to Protect Biodiversity

Scientists have warned for years that as forests and grasslands are disappearing at unprecedented rates and oceans are pressured by pollution, humans are pushing Earth beyond tenable limits. In December 2022, nearly 200 countries agreed on a Global Biodiversity Framework at the United Nations 15th meeting of the Conference of the Parties to the Convention on Biological Diversity. The historic agreement represents hope for real progress to halt the loss of biodiversity. Among its numerous provisions, the framework commits nations to protect 30 percent of the world's lands, inland waters, coastal areas and oceans by 2030; increase financing for nature restoration and protection; halt human-induced extinction; and protect the rights of indigenous people. The protections will emphasize areas of particular importance for biodiversity and ecosystem functioning and services.

Throughout the talks there was division over the strength of the measures and how to finance them. In a statement released by the Wildlife Conservation Society, vice president of international policy Susan Lieberman said, "The [framework] is a compromise, and although it has several very good and hard-fought elements, it could have gone further to truly transform our destructive relationship with nature." During negotiations, some countries called for a new fund to be set up to help preserve biodiversity, but this recommendation was not included in the final pact.

First Honeybee Vaccine Approved

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA), more than 100 U.S. crops depend on pollination by honeybees and other insects. Safeguarding commercial honeybee colonies is critical to food production as there has been an alarming population decline in wild species due to habitat loss, pesticide use and the climate crisis.

Recently, the USDA granted a two-year conditional license for a vaccine that protects honeybees from American foulbrood disease (AFB), a widespread, destructive ailment. The non-GMO inoculation will initially be available to commercial beekeepers and can be used in organic agriculture.

Prior to this booster, the only treatment method for AFB required beekeepers to burn the infected hives and equipment. According to vaccine manufacturer Dalan Animal Health, their vaccination is incorporated into the royal jelly, which worker bees feed to the queen. Once ingested, fragments of the treatment are deposited in the queen's ovaries, providing developing larvae AFB immunity as they hatch.

Injured Whale Makes Long Journey

Each year, humpback whales migrate from the frigid waters near Alaska and western Canada to the warm waters of Mexico and Hawaii to breed and give birth. At the end of 2022, an extraordinary whale named Moon made the 3,100-mile journey from British Columbia to Hawaii with a broken back. The Canadian researchers that have been tracking Moon for the past decade discovered that the entire lower portion of her tail was bent into an unnatural "S" shape, presumably as a result of a boat strike.

Researchers speculate the whale made the arduous journey without the use of her tail, essentially using the breaststroke to make her migration. The journey left Moon emaciated when she reached Hawaii, having used up her fat stores and with no hope of recovery, given the scarce food resources in the tropical waters. Moon's story serves as a cautionary tale for the devastating effects of ship collisions with whales. Boaters are reminded to treat whale areas like school zones and slow down to keep marine creatures safe.

Wooden Wind Turbines

Wind turbines provide one of the cleanest sources of energy; the power they produce is free, helping us reduce our dependence on fossil fuels. Several European companies are working to improve wind turbines by further reducing their carbon footprint. Stora Enso, one of the largest private forest owners in the world, has partnered with Voodin Blade Technology of Germany to make sustainable wooden, wind turbine blades. They are currently producing 66-foot blades and plan to make 262-foot blades in the future. These sustainable, laminated veneer, lumber blades have a high load-bearing capacity, are lighter and reduce the use of fossil fuels in manufacturing. Because they are relatively lightweight, the blades can be transported without heavy-duty equipment, further reducing their carbon impact. Stora Enso is also partnering with Swedish wood technology company Modvion in an effort to make wood the material of choice for wind turbine towers.

Modulation of Pain

by Shoshanna Katzman

Acupuncture is an ancient Chinese medicine technique used to treat a variety of pain conditions. It works through the insertion of needles into specific locations on the skin known as acupuncture points. The story goes that it was first discovered when a Chinese soldier's shoulder pain was gone after being pierced in the leg by an arrow. Interestingly, the original needles were made of stone and shaped like an arrow.

Today, an acupuncturist uses ultra-thin stainless-steel needles that are surprisingly painless. The acupuncture experience is typically relaxing, soothing and deeply healing. Both then and now, acupuncture has been known to ameliorate pain by opening energetic blockages within the area treated and throughout the body. Upon doing so, it positively influences the body's tissues, glands, vital organs and promotes overall bodily function.

Acupuncture modulates pain and promotes healing through increasing Qi and blood flow, boosting immunity and reducing inflammation. It balances and calms the emotions which helps one handle their pain better.

In 1971, the American public first heard about acupuncture when New York Times journalist James Reston received acupuncture successfully to control his pain after an appendectomy while visiting China with President Nixon. Henry Kissinger also played a role in this story when he mentioned the journalist's experience and Nixon's newfound interest in acupuncture during a press briefing after this China trip. Not too long afterward, the first acupuncture school opened in Boston in 1975.

Another major step toward its acceptance in the United States happened in 1996 when the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approved acupuncture needles as a Class II medical device. This came with the requirement that they be steel, solid, sterile, nontoxic, single-use and properly labeled. Acupuncture has been known throughout the ages to come with a low risk of complications or side effects when provided by a qualified licensed acupuncturist.

Treatment is covered by many major health insurances and the two major national acupuncture organizations are working together to get acupuncture covered by Medicare. Today, approximately 15,000 acupuncturists provide their services in acupuncture centers, physical therapy offices, pain clinics, multi-disciplinary practices and other medical facilities such as physician's offices, hospitals and rehabilitation centers from coast to coast. Something that was thought of as underground in the seventies is now taking its righteous place in modern medicine.

Whether acute or chronic, acupuncture has been known to treat head, neck, shoulder, back, hip, abdominal, knee, hand and heel pain effectively. This includes but is not limited to migraines, sinus pressure, sciatica, gastritis, menstrual cramps, PMS, sports injuries, TMJ, carpal tunnel, repetitive strain disorders, myofascial pain and overall joint pain.

Research studies have established that acupuncture releases natural chemicals such as pain-relieving endorphins and neurotransmitters that control nerve impulses. An acupuncturist typically recommends weekly treatments, although this varies depending on the severity of the symptoms, how long one has been suffering and how quickly one's body responds.

Healing is quick for some, but gradual for others. Traditionally, it is said to take one month of treatment for each year that a symptom has existed. The most important thing is to be patient and trust your body's ability to heal and release pain. Keep in mind that a treatment such as acupuncture works by pushing a symptom out rather than burying it deep within the body. Accordingly, symptoms may temporarily get worse before getting better. This is the natural process of how the body heals itself.

The most important thing is to give your body the time it needs to rebalance and reclaim health and wellness. Just remember that this ancient modality strengthens your body's ability to heal itself. It prods your innate healing capability. Acupuncture clears the way energetically, physically and emotionally for healing to take place. It doesn't hurt to give it a try!

The Effect of Toxins on Your Health

by Ariella Belote, R.N.

Over time, chronic and daily exposure to toxins add up—like tiny drops in a bucket – contributing to your body's toxic load, eventually interfering with its ability to function optimally and subsequently leading to harmful effects on your health.

Research is now showing us that toxins play much more of a driving role in creating disease than we realize. According to the National Cancer Institute and the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences data, environmental factors cause between 80-90% of all cancers.

Dr. Joseph Pizzorno, one of the world's leading authorities on science-based natural medicine calls "Toxicity is the primary driver of disease." Tracey Woodruff, director of UCSF's Program on Reproductive Health and the Environment, was quoted in an interview, saying the environmental toxins might be a missing factor in the cause and prevention of disease.

When your cumulative toxic burden is left unaddressed, it may lead to health challenges. If you're struggling with a health condition or unexplainable symptom and you don't know the root cause – toxic overload may be the culprit.

Chronic toxic exposure can be indicated by such symptoms as:

- Digestive issues like bloating, gas, diarrhea or constipation
- Mood issues, anxiety or depression
- Brain fog or memory loss, attention disorders
- Asthma or other respiratory issues
- Fatigue
- Headaches and migraines
- Unexplained pain and soreness

Why Toxins Are Stored In Fat

When toxins enter the body, they will be flagged as intruders. Some of the toxins are eliminated through our body's natural detox pathways – our sweat, urine and stool – but our body has a limited detox capacity, so what the body is not able to remove, it stores.

Many environmental chemicals are lipophilic, which means they get stored in fat tissue. This is a brilliant defense mechanism our bodies use to prevent toxins from freely circulating, but it's also not a healthy long-term solution for toxins to be stored in our bodies in this manner, where they gradually accumulate over time and eventually cause disease.

And while the body can burn fat, it can't burn toxins. So during weight loss or detox protocols for example, these previously sequestered toxins begin entering the bloodstream so they can be expelled from the body, however the process can be uncomfortable. People often feel feverish, achy, irritable, etc. This is referred to as a "Herxheimer reaction" and is also the reason why we recommend using binders to help usher these toxins out of the body. This is why safe and effective detoxification is crucial.

Increase Your Toxicity IQ

When it comes to toxicity, the more you know, the less toxic you're likely to be. Once you've taken stock of the toxins in your life, there are actionable steps you can take to minimize further exposure, detox and create a less toxic home and lifestyle, ultimately leading to a reduced toxic load and better health!

Step 1: Remove non-essential toxins from your environment, like non-stick cookware, antiperspirants.

Step 2: Replace these items with safer alternatives, like cast iron pans and non-toxic deodorants

Step 3: Reduce exposure where removal of toxic exposures is not possible. For example, hardwire internet cables instead of using WIFI.

Step 4: Avoid future exposure by making safer purchasing decisions. Research items before making purchases, to make sure you know ingredients and whether there are safer, less toxic alternatives available.

Step 5: Detoxing!

Newest Breakthrough in Energy Medicine – Deep Dive into Body Intuitive

by Beth Aitken

You may have heard of Reiki, but what if I told you there is a newer Energy Medicine modality that is Reiki on steroids? That is how Body Intuitive is being described. Body Intuitive is a combination of Eastern and Western medicine that uses the body's intuitive ability to heal. Body Intuitive believes the mind and body are connected, and to clear any disruption in the body, we must uncover the underlying story to get to the root cause.

A Body Intuitive Practitioner will have many, many charts detailing specific areas of Western and Eastern/Chinese medicine. For example, a chart of the Nervous System will be two pages listing all areas of the brain and the gut brain. To figure out which area to work on, a practitioner will tune into the client's Quantum Field, or Energetic Field. Some other examples of charts are for Immune System, Organs, Chakras, and toxins. In Chinese Medicine, the charts include Qi types, Meridians, and an extensive list of acupoints.

A client may come to a session with Anxiety. A practitioner can muscle test the chart on the Nervous System to figure out which area of the brain is over-firing. Then the practitioner will uncover the story that contributed to the over-firing area. For example, maybe the stress of leaving for school for the first time and being separated from parents caused stress on the Nervous System.

Body Intuitive can help with anxiety, digestion, sleep issues, COVID long-haul symptoms, pain, hormone imbalances, and help uncover toxins. After identifying the contributing story, the next step is having the Practitioner attempt to clear the disruption using various techniques.

First is a precise use of Acupressure points. The practitioner may use one point, or a combination of points to help release the story from the body and balance the area in question. A point can be tapped or massaged for up to a minute each. Second is a Shamanic Breathing technique. This allows the body to feel emotions trapped in the body and release them. After clearing the emotion, it is important to make sure to reclaim any power left to the situation. The third technique is "Resources." Resources include information that a client or a Practitioner may have. This can be an activity, a book or a food. An example of a Resource is for the client to get out in nature more.

The fourth technique is Epigenetics. This is a layer on top of your genes that can be altered with emotional situations, toxins, or sickness. Body Intuitive can identify and clear these changes. Epigenetic changes may be inherited, so the Practitioner will have to uncover the story associated with an ancestor.

The benefits of Body Intuitive are it is non-invasive and doesn't rely on traditional medicines. It can be performed from anywhere, virtually or remotely. You can have a session from your couch! It can help reduce stress, improve energy and decrease pain. Body Intuitive can provide a greater sense of well-being and peace.

Loving Our Kidneys

EDIBLE ALLIES, INTEGRATIVE TREATMENTS AND LIFESTYLE TIPS

by Marlaina Donato

Our kidneys are prodigious multitaskers. Through the production of urine, they filter toxins, excrete waste and balance bodily fluids. They also produce certain hormones that regulate blood pressure and aid in other vital functions. While the kidneys don't usually fail all at once, their effectiveness can deteriorate slowly over years, and chronic kidney disease (CKD) is most often the result of uncontrolled diabetes or high blood pressure. Simple blood and urine tests help physicians evaluate kidney function and diagnose CKD, which is divided into five stages. The first three stages are mild or moderate, and can respond well to lifestyle modifications and alternative interventions, while the more severe, later stages become increasingly more complex to treat and may require dialysis to mechanically perform the kidneys' functions. In end-stage CKD, many patients are relegated to dialysis treatments several times a month to prevent the accumulation of deadly toxins, while many wait and hope for a life-saving transplant.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that one in seven adults are diagnosed annually. Most of these 37 million Americans do not feel ill or notice symptoms until they are in advanced stages of the disease, which is why people with diabetes and high blood pressure should be tested regularly and take steps to protect their kidneys. Managing CKD requires a multilevel approach, including lifestyle and diet changes, use of prescribed medications, avoidance of kidney-harming toxins like alcohol and cigarettes, and close supervision by a doctor that specializes in kidney disease (nephrologist) to ensure that other prescribed medications and over-the-counter or herbal treatments are safe.

Integrative and holistic approaches may be of help for those in earlier stages of kidney disease or for those striving to prevent it. "I have been really blessed to be connected with a global team of people who, like myself and everyone I work with, understand that kidney disease is treatable, and the recovery of kidney function is actually possible," says Fiona Chin, an Australia-based naturopath and co-founder of KidneyCoach.com. Chin adds that she and her colleagues have witnessed significant patient improvement from tailored diet and lifestyle regimens during and after diagnosis, especially when root causes are addressed.

The Kidney-Friendly Kitchen

Promising research published last year in Frontiers of Pharmacology shows that combining Western treatments and Traditional Chinese Medicine can have a positive impact on even late-stage renal failure. Isaac Eliaz, M.D., an integrative medical doctor and founder of Amitabha Medical Clinic, in Santa Rosa, California, says, "Preventing and reducing chronic inflammation is a critical aspect of minimizing CKD risk. An anti-inflammatory diet, moderate exercise program and attention to stress reduction all work to decrease the pro-inflammatory milieu."

He also highlights the importance of protecting and boosting beneficial gut bacteria, which can be addressed with supplements or prebiotic foods like garlic, leeks, onions and jicama.

Piling whole, plant-plentiful goodness onto our plates and embracing an alkaline diet are key measures in the prevention of CKD by lowering the risk for cardiovascular disease and diabetes. Mayo Clinic offers renal-supportive recipes with fruits, vegetables and grains like quinoa. It also recommends avoiding many packaged and processed foods that have phosphorus added to prolong shelf life and enhance taste, such as convenience foods, sodas and sports drinks, flavor-enhanced meats and processed cheeses.

Jarrold Cooper, ND, founder of Advanced Functional Medicine, uW-Wnderscores the importance of nixing pro-inflammatory foods such as sugars, refined carbohydrates, excessive red meat, trans and saturated fats, caffeine and alcohol. Alcohol negatively impacts liver function, and over time reduces blood flow to the kidneys, leading to CKD, he says. That extra glass of wine can also crank up blood pressure, a surefire path to renal compromise.

Kidney-loving fruits, according to Cleveland Urology Associates, include pineapple, cranberries, red grapes and apples, all of which pack an anti-inflammatory punch.

Sodium: Friend or Foe?

Chin notes that although salt is essential for nerve and muscle function, a balancing of fluids in the blood and healthy blood pressure, not all salt is beneficial. "Salt is a healthy thing to have in your diet in moderation and in the right form," she asserts. "Table salt is manufactured salt that is stripped of its natural minerals. During salt processing, the balance of sodium to other valuable minerals is lost. Most salt companies also add anti-caking agents that contain aluminum." Chin recommends good-quality Himalayan salt or sea salt that also contains traces of other natural minerals.

Various types of seaweeds, like dulce, nori and kombu, are natural sources of sodium, safe for people that don't have kidney disease. They offer significant benefits for inflammation reduction, blood sugar balance and heart health, including lower blood pressure. Sea vegetables have also been shown to help reduce the risk of kidney stones by inhibiting the formation of calcium oxalate.

Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy: A Breakthrough Treatment for Post-Concussion Syndrome

By Chris Pepitone, D.C.

Do you or someone you know suffer from post-concussion syndrome? If so, you know how debilitating and frustrating this condition can be. Fortunately, there is a breakthrough treatment available that can help to alleviate symptoms and improve quality of life – Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy (HBOT).

HBOT is a safe and effective medical treatment that involves breathing pure oxygen in a pressurized chamber. The increased oxygen levels in the body can help to promote healing and reduce inflammation, making it an excellent option for those suffering from post-concussion syndrome.

One of the most significant benefits of HBOT for post-concussion syndrome is its ability to improve cognitive function. Many individuals who have suffered a concussion experience memory problems, confusion, and difficulty concentrating, but HBOT has been shown to help improve these symptoms. It can also help to reduce headaches, dizziness, and fatigue, which are common symptoms of post-concussion syndrome.

In addition to its cognitive benefits, HBOT has also been shown to be an effective treatment for reducing depression and anxiety symptoms in individuals with post-concussion syndrome. The therapy can help to improve mood and overall well-being, making it an excellent option for those struggling with emotional symptoms related to their injury.

Another advantage of HBOT is that it is non-invasive and has no known side effects. This makes it an excellent alternative to more invasive treatments, such as surgery, and it can be a safer option for those who are unable to tolerate medications.

In conclusion, Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy is a revolutionary treatment that can help individuals suffering from post-concussion syndrome. If you or someone you know is struggling with the symptoms of this condition, HBOT is an excellent option to consider. So why wait?

Call us today 732.747.0083 and start experiencing the many benefits of HBOT for post-concussion syndrome!

Get Smart on Blood Pressure with CBT

by Lauren Salani, LCSW, BCB

Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT) was recently shown to have a significant positive effect on health outcomes for people with hypertension in a new systematic review and meta-analysis published by Preventive Medicine Reports. These results are good news as preventing and treating hypertension is of great importance. Addressing the psychological factors underlying high blood pressure gives people an additional way to address their cardiovascular health.

According to the Mayo Clinic, for people who are not taking blood pressure medication, the following readings apply:

Normal blood pressure. Ranges from 120/80 mm Hg or lower.

Elevated blood pressure. Ranges from 120 to 129 mm Hg, the bottom number is below 80 mm Hg.

Stage 1 hypertension. Ranges from 130 to 139 mm Hg or the bottom number is between 80 and 89 mm Hg.

Stage 2 hypertension. Ranges from 140/90 mm Hg or higher.

Blood pressure higher than 180/120 mm Hg is considered a hypertensive emergency. Seek emergency medical help.

In most people, primary essential hypertension results from the interaction of genetic (inherited) and lifestyle factors, while in a smaller proportion of people, blood pressure is higher due to an underlying medical condition, known as secondary high blood pressure. Currently, hypertension affects approximately one third of the adults in the United States. Due to the medical problems that hypertension can cause, it can pose a heavy burden on the person, their family, and on society.

Effectively preventing and treating hypertension is an important goal. Treatment requires a medical diagnosis and is always treated by a medical professional. It is important for people with hypertension to make effective lifestyle changes such as: taking prescribed blood pressure lowering medications, exercising, eating a healthy diet, and quitting smoking and limiting alcohol use. Hypertension is a chronic condition and it's understandable that people would be prone to negative emotions such as anxiety and depression during treatment.

CBT is a psychological therapy that aims to integrate thoughts, feelings, and behaviors to help the person change perceptions to enhance their quality of life. Thoughts, feelings, and behavior are all related and affect each other. When a person is highly anxious or depressed, their thoughts, feelings, and behaviors tend to work against them in a vicious cycle. CBT helps a person break out of this cycle. As better thinking and more helpful behaviors are practiced, thoughts and actions begin to reinforce each other in a positive and healthy direction.

If your doctor has recommended blood pressure management after higher blood pressure readings in the office, also focusing on the contributing psychological factors would offer a more holistic approach. The thoughts we think can affect our blood pressure, the feelings we feel can affect our thoughts, both can influence how we treat ourselves, how we behave toward ourselves affects our blood pressure. Interrupting this cycle by learning new ways to put a positive focus on thoughts feelings and behavior can be efficacious in reducing systolic pressure, diastolic pressure, total cholesterol level, anxiety symptoms, depressive symptoms and improving the quality of sleep for patients with hypertension.

CBT can have a profound impact on the prevention and management of hypertension. You can start by thinking positively about your heart and all it does for you. Begin to care for your heart by taking a more proactive outlook.

If you are interested in a course of CBT as an addition to a healthy heart plan, please contact my office. Therapy is always delivered in an inviting, compassionate office setting.

WANDER TRAVEL: MAKING LOVED ONES FEEL EXTRA SPECIAL

by Kerry Bray

Traveling with your partner has so many benefits to improve your relationship and your wellbeing. And the statistics prove it! Research shows that almost 72% of people see improved wellbeing after traveling, and almost 53% of people feeling more connected to their partners after traveling together. By combining luxury with your travel experience, you can return from any trip feeling rested, calm, more in love, and in a state of peace. Traveling is special on its own, and luxury doesn't have to break your budget. There are many ways to incorporate little luxe touches to any travel experience.

Here are a few suggestions on how to make the ones you love feel extra special whether you are traveling by train, plane, or automobile in the states or overseas.

Glam up your train ride. Rail travel is making a comeback, so do it right and ensure the champagne is flowing. Dress to the nines, complete with gloves and hat for your excursion. Bring a beautiful book of sonnets to read to your love or a lovely leather-bound journal and fountain pen to exchange love notes while sitting beside each other. Really glam it up! Book a night or two on Belmond's Venice Simplon-Orient-Express. The art-deco glamour, exquisite cuisine and the train's storied history make the trip from Paris to Vienna, Venice, Verona or Prague (and many points in between) a journey to remember.

Make air travel a spa-like experience. Pack a few necessities in travel-friendly containers and surprise your partner with a spa kit! Try a mist water spray, a gel neck wrap, drops of essential oils, and a luxe sleep mask paired with a relaxing mix of music and earbuds to transport you both to a state of complete relaxation. Land in the spa! Take a plane trip to indulge in a luxurious spa day at the Hacienda Altagracia in Costa Rica and be swept away by the ultimate relaxation experience. The Well spa at Hacienda Altagracia is a true sanctuary of rejuvenation, offering a wide range of services. This spa day is the perfect way to unwind, reconnect and create an unforgettable memory in the natural paradise of Costa Rica.

Wander around in style. Luxe travel can be right at your doorstep. Rent a luxury car for the day and find a beautiful spot to stop. Pack a picnic lunch complete with filet mignon tips, assorted cheeses, beautiful linens, and a bouquet of fresh flowers. Ride around until dinner! Reserve a table at a Michelin-starred restaurant. Not only will the meal and wine pairing be exquisite, but the level of service will make you feel like a rock star. The restaurants are graded on the fine quality of ingredients, the harmonious blending of flavors, the skill and mastery of techniques, the unique distinctions and personality of the chef, and the consistency of their food. In the USA, there are 200 around the country from New York to LA to choose from. Check out the Michelin Guide to find one near you.

Natural Remedies for Pets

SEVEN NON-TOXIC TREATMENTS FOR COMMON AILMENTS

by Karen Shaw Becker, DVM

Natural remedies and healing therapies are not just for humans, they also help pets overcome illness and maintain optimal health. Used properly, plants, herbs, essential oils and other natural, non-toxic substances can complement and often replace drugs and other chemical agents. Here are seven healthful solutions.

COCONUT OIL is a source of medium-chain triglycerides, which benefit cognitive function. It is also rich in lauric acid, a powerful antimicrobial agent for yeast infections, allergies and skin conditions (when used topically). Feed dogs and cats one-quarter teaspoon of 100 percent organic, cold-pressed, human-grade coconut oil for every 10 pounds of the pet's body weight twice daily.

MANUKA HONEY is an all-natural, effective remedy. Clinical trials have shown that it can eradicate hundreds of strains of bacteria, including certain antibiotic-resistant varieties. A Unique Manuka Factor rating of 10 or higher is recommended for medicinal use. Manuka honey can be used to manage resistant ear and skin infections, as well as large, superficial wounds that cannot be closed surgically. Given orally, manuka honey is effective at addressing H. pylori, the bacteria that contributes to gastrointestinal irritation, small intestinal bacterial overgrowth and excessive E. coli blooms in animals with dysbiosis.

ALOE VERA has multiple applications. To reduce a dog's discomfort from skin irritations, cuts or wounds, clean the affected area and apply the raw, inner gel of the plant to provide a soothing effect. For constipation, a small amount of whole leaf aloe vera juice, a natural laxative, can be added to a dog's food. Inner leaf aloe juice, which doesn't contain the skin, helps heal gastric ulcers, colitis and leaky gut.

LAVENDER OIL is used in aromatherapy to help calm nervous or anxious animals.

For a dog with noise phobia, place a few drops on their collar or bedding before a stressor occurs, if possible, or diffuse the oil around the house for a calming effect. Lavender oil can also be beneficial for treating hot spots. Add a few drops to manuka honey or coconut oil and apply after disinfecting the wound twice daily.

OREGANO OIL contains potent antibacterial and anti-parasitic properties. It can be used to calm itchy skin, soothe irritated gums and assist in balancing a dog's gut flora. It is also a beneficial herb for dogs with kennel cough or recurrent infections. Oregano oil should always be diluted before using it in or on pets.

GINGER is a widely used, non-toxic, non-irritating remedy for soothing tummy troubles.

It can be given orally or used in oil form by adding a few drops to a carrier oil, such as coconut or olive oil, and massaging the mixture into the skin on the pet's belly. Alternatively, add small amounts of freshly grated ginger or the dry herb to a tasty meatball or other yummy treat. Use no more than one-sixteenth teaspoon for kitties, one-eighth teaspoon for small dogs under 10 pounds, one-quarter teaspoon for medium-sized dogs, one-half teaspoon for large dogs and three-quarter to one teaspoon for giant breeds. Give the ginger one to three times a day, as needed.

CHAMOMILE is an effective calming agent that has analgesic and anti-spasmodic properties and is beneficial in soothing the central nervous system. Use a cool chamomile tea bag against a wound, irritation or bug bite on the dog's or cat's skin to provide a soothing effect. Something else to consider is a soothing chamomile after-bath rinse. Add five chamomile tea bags to two quarts of very hot water and steep until the water is cool for up to three hours to allow the maximum amount of polyphenols to release into the water. Remove the tea bags and pour the rinse over a freshly bathed pet from the neck down. Massage into the skin and do not rinse.

Accelerate Healing with Energy.

Using light energy through distance healing, your healing process can move forward more smoothly.

"My knee was warm for about 3 full hours after I left. It seemed to heal further after I slept the first couple of nights. While my knee was not healed 100%, it was significantly better and I was able to go on my Montana ski trip the next week.

P.S. Another month after my ski trip my knee has continued to improve."
